Nixon's Crash Program on Drugs

President Nixon described the extent of his recently ordered probe into drug addiction, especially that of American servicemen in Vietnam, during his Tuesday news conference. It is a study that should come up with some answers to what appears to be a serious situation, both in this country among civilians and returned troops and in Vietnam. But unfortunately, like so many such programs, it comes as almost a desperate reaction to a situation that has been developing for some time.

Two American Congressmen, Democrat Morgan Murphy and Republican Robert Steele, toured Indochina to determine the extent of drug use which already had been the cause of concern among many military officers. Their findings were depressing. They cited 15 to 20 per cent of all American servicemen in Indochina, not merely acquainted with drugs or users of marijuana, but becoming hooked on heroin. Drugs are cheap in Vietnam, even though their traffic obviously is condoned by some high Vietnamese officials or it wouldn't be so widespread. It is one more indication of the contempt many Southeast Asians have for the United States and our military adventure in Indochina.

Dealing with the problem is extremely difficult. In the war zone, there is the disillusion, the discouragement, the sense of frustration that afflicts the draftees, in particular, who do not believe in the war and in any case are likely to see themselves as pawns for Washington's attempt to save face. It must be hard to sustain morale in a war which our national leaders apparently intend to end no matter what, although they do not quite say so. Dying for a cause is difficult enough; risking one's life for nothing can be unbearable — and drugs serve to ease the agony.

But in this country, too, the considerable increase in drug use is proof that restrictions are difficult. In spite of stiff penalties, especially for pushers, the traffic goes on and may still be growing. Lighter sentences for users of pot have not seemed to slow down drug abuse either. The drug culture is accepted in several segments of our society just as illegal alcohol was accepted during Prohibition. Drugs are readily available even to the junior high school student. We continue to provide economic aid to our ally Turkey, a major source of heroin. The massive border operation to halt the importation of marijuana from Mexico was only mildly effective — and encouraged the growth of the weed in this country. And a great many Americans abuse the use of over-the-counter and prescriptions drugs even though they do not break any laws.

Can a crash program work? It is doubtful. The military does have an opportunity to identify returning addicts or other drug users and to require treatment before release. But cured addicts are few and the outlook for more in the future is not encouraging.

Politically, President Nixon's proposal may be sound even though it was tardy. Realistically, it may not have much chance of any great success. It is still the why rather than the how of drug use that needs to be answered.

By The Associated Press

It was a victory all the way for President Nixon's hard fought battle against Sen. Mike Mansfield's proposal to reduce U.S. troop strength in Europe.

But the amiable Democratic majority leader of the Senate served notice that he intended to press the plan again after the issues in the debate have time to sink in on his Senate colleagues, the United States and its allies. He expressed conviction that the debate had already made people more aware of the problem.

"I think the minimum was achieved," he said. "The maximum is yet to be sought."

White House Dug In

From the moment that Mansfield made his move to reduce U.S. troop strength, the White House dug in and mustered all the support it could get. The government recruited a coalition of elder statesmen, generals prominent in the Atlantic Alliance and two Democratic former presidents, Lyndon B. Johnson and Harry S. Truman.

The strategy paid off. By a vote of 61-36 the Senate rejected Mansfield's plan for a 50 per cent reduction in the U.S. force in Europe by the end of 1971.

The United States had a total of 2,802,344 troops in Europe as of March 31, 1971, according to the Pentagon. Figures furnished by the Institute for Strategic Studies

Who Are the Bright Ones? Pass/Fail Grading System Is Swindle, Roche Argues

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

All men are created equal, according to the Declaration of Independence, but we all recognize the practical limitations of this abstract ideal. While human beings are equal in the sight of God, and should be equal in the eyes of the law, they are obviously not equally strong, bright, musically talented, etc. Yet in recent years there has been a strong campaign in the nation's colleges and universities against the traditional grading system on the ground that it is not egalitarian, that in separating the men from the boys (or the women from the girls), intellectually speaking, the institution is engaging in undemocratic behavior.

For the old grading system — which used either letter grade with plus and minus or numerical evaluations — the eager reformers have been substituting a variety of alternatives. Here and there, the old wine was simply rebottled: A became "honors," A minus: "honors minus," B plus: "excellent plus," etc. A version that was a professor's dream of heaven when grading papers involved three categories: Pass, Fail, and Honors. In fact, this is the way exams break — you can immediately spot the outstanding answers and the busts, but sorting out the intermediate mass into Bs and Cs, with plus or minus, is sheer torture.

However, the most "radical" system, which allegedly avoids any invidious discrimination, any elitism, is a simple Pass-Fail arrangement. All students who receive above 60, or D minus, get a "P" on their transcripts. If any manage to get less — which is no mean accomplishment these days — they receive "F." In other words, the most brilliant student in a class and the marginal floater receive the same grade — this is "equality" with a vengeance. Its defenders insist that such a technique eliminates the "terrible emphasis on grades" or the "competitive environment which takes the joy out of learning." In fact, it is a swindle that ironically has exaggerated the competitive element on a different level.

It is a swindle, first of all, because the faculty no longer has to do any serious evaluation of student performance. If we had a Pass-Fail system, I could grade a hundred hour-exams in two hours. It is a swindle, in the second place, because it fosters a wholly unrealistic notion of the nature of life in the world out there, which is competitive unless one plans to devote himself to monastic contemplation, or has inherited a million dollars.

The real paradox is that the introduction of these mushy grading systems has led graduate and professional schools to throw up their hands in despair. As a member of the graduate committee which has the job of choosing students for admission, fellowships, and scholarships, I can speak from experience. A young man or woman applies from a college with the Pass-Fail system. The transcript is a useless record — all "P's." Aware of the problem, some of these colleges have attached a document consisting of "personal comments" by the faculty in various courses. These are generally very revealing: "Fine student," "very perceptive," "good command of the subject matter," etc. There are, of course, formal letters of recommendation, but they tend to be ritualized encomiums: Indeed, last year a professor at a university wrote us "this is the best student I have had in the last five years" for two different applicants!

So what do you do? Reach for the GRE (Graduate Record Examination scores). The GRE are nationally administered examinations, the big brothers of the College Boards that terrify high school seniors. The individual takes a test of general information, the so-called verbal, a math test, and an exam in his field of interest. The committee eagerly scrutinizes the results and, for lack of any other hard criteria, puts great emphasis on the scores. What could be more competitive?

The same process, I'm told, is true at the law schools, where college transcripts are practically ignored in favor of scores on the LSAT (Law School Admissions Test), another nationally administered objective exam. Students, who are a lot smarter than they are often given credit for, know this. It creates dreadful anxiety, which, if anything, the feedback from "reform" has increased. Now their academic futures virtually depend on one test.

NATO" and Nixon himself declared that a NATO troop cut at this stage would be "an error of historic dimensions."

A number of senators, including Mansfield, expressed belief that the outcome had been partly determined by the offer of Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to enter exploratory negotiations with the United States and members of the Atlantic Alliance on mutual troop reductions in central Europe.

The Nixon forces were careful to hammer home this point. All through the debate they stressed that any unilateral cutback would undermine the U.S. bargaining position and the

Wisconsin Report Here's Scenario for Tax, Budget Debate

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The careful statement of the Republican State Senate caucus which denounced the Lucey administration for its proposal to enact "unnecessary and unwise" increases in state-levied taxes must appear to be an assurance to every politically literate citizen that the Democratic revenue expansion plan will be frustrated.

The Republicans control the Senate with a substantial numerical majority. Their "position paper" declares that it was "unanimously adopted" by the Republican senators.

Thus all that would seem to be required, from the perspective of the watching taxpayer in the ranks, will be a voting pattern of that majority that is consistent with the literal meaning of the press release. But is that likely?

Probably Don't Deliver

It is not. The Democratic Assembly knows that it is not. The Republicans themselves are quite aware that they are seeming to promise something that they are unlikely to be able to deliver.

This is the somewhat shop-worn game that is played when no party controls a government and when the anxious antagonists cajole or bluster, according to their positions and their assessments of the popular temper.

The scenario can be anticipated. The requirements are familiar to the Capitol watcher because divided partisan power has become so commonplace in the last decade and a half.

In the first act, the Assembly Democratic majority will approve the approximate Lucey spending and taxation package, albeit with some reluctance by various Democrats who will be assured that this first roll call won't be held against them because it will be quickly forgotten in the maze of developments to follow.

The Senate, as its Republican caucus has "unanimously" suggested, will then get on the record with a vote rejecting the Lucey spending and taxing plans to the accompaniment of a good deal of hoopla. But every man on the roll call will be expertly aware that this second chapter will also be a part of a noisy show signifying nothing.

To Seek Compromises

Then there will emerge the conference committee, so-called, a small group of the chief partisans of each party and each house who will settle down to dreary nights and days of pounding out the best bargains from the point of view of each party that can be had.

The Republicans will resign themselves to some things they don't like. The Democrats will accept some concessions that they now say they won't give. There will be new taxation in spite of the present posture of the Republicans and the fact that they have the power to prevent it. There will be less spending, and perhaps less taxation than the Democrats have proposed.

It is an awkward, amorphous method of making decisions, but there can be no other when the parties are so closely balanced as to fail to achieve true governing power.

Will Dilute Responsibility

Thus the ability of the constituency to fix responsibility will be diluted, and many of the politicians of both parties will be grateful.

For the truth is that no politician can be sure of the limit of patience of the taxpayer, on the one hand, or the limit of demand on the part of the spending pressures. There is less distinction between the parties, as measured by their typical men in legislative seats, on these matters than is sometimes supposed on the basis of angry rhetoric. Democrats don't want to bear the label of high taxers. Republicans flinch from the idea of running as tightwads.

Democrats are as susceptible to pressure from tax-weary constituents, and especially those new members holding marginal districts, as the Republicans are responsive to the heat waves generated by powerful state institutions, local school boards, local governments and the other major tax consumers.

Looking Backward Turner Exhibition Successful

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Post for June 8, 1871

The exhibition of the Turner Society came off as advertised last Tuesday evening.

The exercises were introduced by music, after which a brief but pleasant and appropriate address was delivered by Sam Ryan Jr.

Following this was a discourse in German by Mr. C. Kurth.

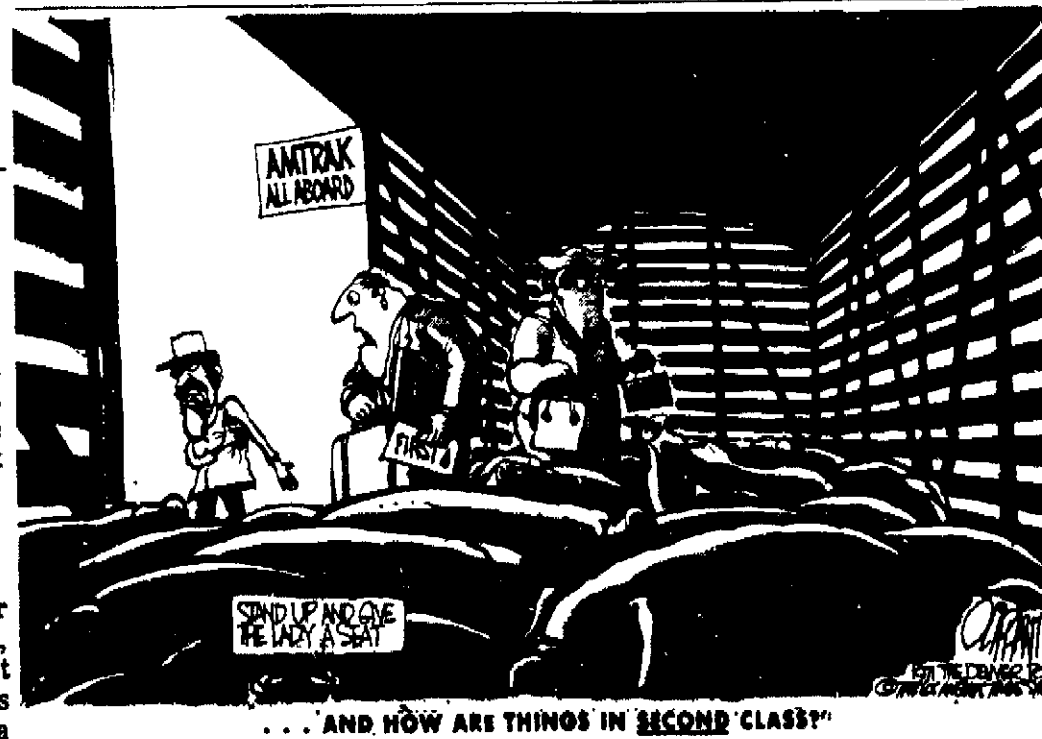

The tableaux were presented with fine scenic effect and were, without exception, the best that we have ever seen in this city.

The acrobatic performances of the Appleton and Oshkosh Turners evinced considerable improvement on the part of both of these Societies since their last public appearances.

Irish Singer Opens Own Show Tonight

BY TV SCOUT
7:30-8:30 Channel 11 — Val Doonican is an Irish performer who's a British TV staple. His first venture into American television is Val Doonican Show, a weekly variety hour on ABC-TV's summer schedule. In his first outing, Val welcomes guests Petula Clark and country-western guitarist Jerry Reed. Pet introduces Val, then sings "I Don't Know How To Love Him," from the rock musical, "Jesus Crist, Superstar." Val sings "Irish Rover," and joins guitarist Reed in a whimsical song titled, "You Can't Have Your Kate and Edith Too." Bernard Cribbins is the British comedy regular — and his routine this week is fine for Three Stooges fans. Some of the spots on the show are good, and Doonican has the easy charm of a Gaelic Perry Como, but the show seems snipped and clipped together" with little continuity.

4-5 Channels 2-7 — Will Canonero 11 be the first Triple Crown winner since 1948 (when the great Citation won the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont)? The question will be answered on The Belmont Stakes

4-5:30 Channels 11-9 — Wide World of Sports has the Grand Prix of Monaco as the main event.

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Mission: Impossible, in a good episode, builds lots of suspense in a mission which goes very smoothly until Dana (Lesley Warren) picks up some information which involves Phelps' life and, before she can relay it, is kidnapped by a psychotic who has nothing to with the case, but who sees her as the woman he murdered earlier. (R)

7:30-8 Channels 2-7 — My Three Sons continues the saga of the newlyweds, Chip and Polly. They're back from their honeymoon and setting up housekeeping in a small room in the dorm. (R)

8-8:30 Channels 2-7 — There's some good barbershop quartet singing on Arnie, supplied by Herschel Bernardi, Olan Soule, Jimmy Scruggs and Elaine Shore, who plays Felicia. The plot concerns efforts to get bad singer Mr. Majors (Roger Bowen) out of the quartet and Elaine in. (R)

8:30-9 Channels 2-7 — Still another winner for The Mary Tyler Moore Show has a local theater company (where Ted Knight is the resident "star") producing a play written by Murray (Gavin MacLeod). (R)

9-10 Channels 2-7 — Mannix has a rerun, first aired in 1969. In it, Bobby Troup lays Sam, the Pianist, giving the series a bit of a Casablanca flavor. The story is about a murder — or is it a suicide? Mannix has to find out. (R)

Students Back Movie; Help East Go South

BY JINGO

There's an oversized slogan button around town that reads "Help East Go South." The message is bright and it's to the point because with citizen backing East High School Band under Tom Jacobs may just be able to do that and do Appleton proud in parade exhibition at the Orange Bowl.

That's the reason for the oversized Backer Buttons. It's also the reason for the booths around town manned by students eager to sell theater tickets to the movie "The Cross and the Switchblade," starting record today is in youth Wednesday at the Viking Theater.

The trick to the advance ticket sale is that AHS-East and its band get the benefit of 50 cents profit from every ticket sold ahead of time. Tickets may be purchased from three College Avenue stores — New-lease's Hoid Music Co. and theater under the expert guidance of Attic choreographer Liladee Bellinger.

Movie True Story
As to the movie, it's one with a story and a message in a through Friday, starting June way Pat Boone plays the role of a young country preacher who invades the city slums on a one-man crusade. It's the story of his work among teen-age gangsters and it's based on a true story.

The Rev. David Wilkerson did want to try for chorus and other go into the slums of New York and the picture portrays the production of its current season. The fee is nominal and lessons are scheduled for 7 to 8 p.m. If enough sign up, Mrs. Bellinger is planning to organize a second class.

The role of the gang leader, drawn from the life of Nicky Cruz, is portrayed by Erik Estrada. This once-vicious

The lessons will number 10. They will stretch Monday through Friday, starting June 14, over two weeks. Beginners are as welcome as oldtimers and being a member of Attic Theatre is not necessary. Both of his work among teen-age gangsters and it's based on a true story.

Young Hobby Club 'Famous Dates' Tests Knowledge of History

BY CAPPY DICK

Today's game for boys and girls is not only lots of fun, but is good practice for one's memory. It's called "Famous Dates."

At the outset, the first player names a famous date. The second player must repeat the date and add a famous date of his own choice. The third contestant must repeat the first two famous dates and add a famous date of his own selection. And so it goes, the list of dates to be remembered growing longer and longer.

If a player misses a date or repeats the dates in incorrect order, he or she is eliminated from the game.

If a player can't think of a famous date to add, he is disqualified. If a player gives an incorrect date, he is disqualified.

The last player remaining in the game is the winner. Keep an encyclopedia at hand, or at least a dictionary, to check on dates when questions arise as to accuracy.

Monday: Lots more good fun for every boy and girl!

Each Adds a Date

Enemy Strikes Near Saigon

11 Americans Hurt In Rocket Attacks On U.S. Positions

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese gunners kept up a two-week-long rocket bombardment of allied positions guarding the militarized zone and struck close to Saigon for the first time in several months. mili- tary spokesmen reported today. The project was to cost $15.6 million. A spokesman for the U.S. Command, Maj. Richard Gard- ner, said 11 Americans were wounded in three rocket at- tacks against U.S. positions Friday.

Enemy gunners fired 15 rounds of 122mm rockets into Charlie 2, a U.S. base only four miles southeast of the DMZ, and rained 25 missiles into the position of American ground troops five miles northeast of the base.

In the third attack, less than five rounds of 107mm rockets hit a U.S. helicopter base at Phu Loi, 13 miles north of Sai- gon. The U.S. Command said damage was light. Field re- ports said some helicopters were hit.

Charlie 2 has been shelled nearly a dozen times during the past two weeks. On May 21, a rocket tore through a crowded bunker at the base, killing 29 GIs and wounding 33. The rest of the attacks have caused a small number of casualties.

The Aces' margin of victory set a record in winning the Vanderbilt National Knockout Team Championship in March. In doing so, The Aces became strong favorites to represent the United States in the 1972 World Team Olympiad.

The Aces won the Vander- bilt final match by 156 inter- national match points (IMPs), the largest margin ever in a national knockout final. A series of slam disasters for the losers in the first quarter of play helped give The Aces a mammoth 97-1 lead to virtually salt the match away. Today's hand is one of the slam deals that swung 29 IMPs to The Aces.

Opening lead: Ten of diamonds. The bidding was standard, with North's three no-trump bid promising an opening no-trump bid and his five-club bid showing the club ace. South's five no-trump was the Grand Slam Force, asking about North's trump honors. North's response of six diamonds showed one high honor (in their methods), and South optimistically bid the grand slam.

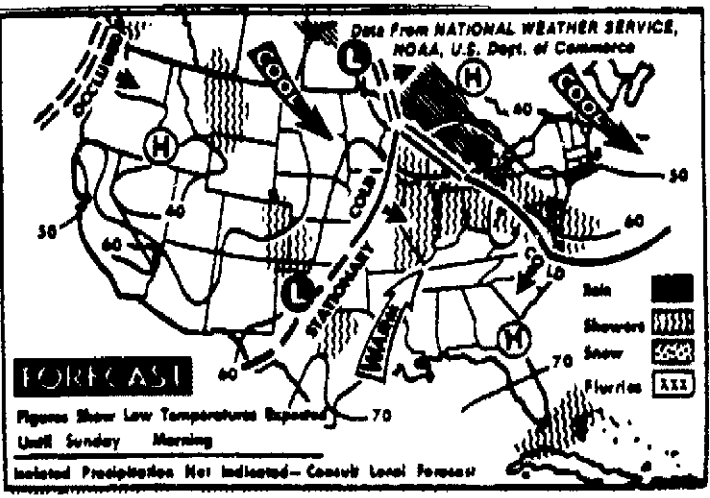

After the lead of the dia- mond 10 was won by de- clarer's ace, declarer led a trump to dummy's king and discarded a heart on dummy's club ace. Declarer could make his contract easily if he decided to take a simple finesse against West's queen. Almost anyone reading this column would make the con- tract by taking a deep breath and finessing the spade.

However, this day belonged to The Aces and declarer went astray. He ruffed one of dummy's clubs and then drew the last trump. Ace Billy Eisenberg, sitting West, dis- carded the spade five and the club nine on the second and third round of trumps.

Eisenberg's spade discar- d created the impression that the spade queen might be with East. This key card could then be captured via a finesse if West had started with a doubleton or triplet on 10. After cashing his two high hearts, declarer played dummy's spade king, and when the 10 fell from West, he followed with the jack and finessed against East Eisen- berg gratefully accepted the queen to defeat the contract one trick.

Eisenberg's clever discard- ing helped gain 16 IMPs instead of losing 13 IMPs. His teammates, Jim Jacoby and Bobby Wolff, in the other room, had played the reason- able and comfortable small slam.

To Your Good Health Teen-age Girl Asks When to Start the Pill

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D. know, some don't care.) Dear Dr. Thosteson, I'm a teen-age girl. I have regular periods and I would like to know at what age should a girl begin taking "the pill" if she wants to. I'm 15 years old. — Miss R.P.

This is about the bluntest

Dr. Thosteson inquiry I've seen on this subject — the blunt part being that phrase about when she "should" start taking birth control pills. I don't mean this critically so far as Miss R.P.'s letter-writing ability goes, but I do think it is illustrative of the kind of think- ing (if you want to call it "thinking") that exists now.

I'm not willing to concede that any 15-year-old "should" use the pill. Admittedly some of them are doing so, and some of them will, but that doesn't mean it is good for them, or that they have thought things "through."

For one thing, there's no doubt in my mind that the pill has contributed to the frighten- ing amount of venereal disease which we now have. Girls think there's no danger of pregnancy, so what is there to worry about? Well, V.D. is one thing to worry about.

For some girls, there can be psychological repercussions — some qualms about free-and- easy sex experience. (Yes, I

Your Problems Brother Tries to Run Her Life

BY ANN LANDERS DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll come straight to the point because I know you are busy. Please tell me what can a 15-year-old girl do about a brother who is only two years older

Landers than she but thinks he is her father. My brother tells me how to dress, how to wear my hair, how much makeup to put on, how to talk to people, how to sit, stand, walk and breathe. He also wants to pick my friends.

Last night he gave me a lecture on guys. He told me not to go with "A" because he pushes pot, not to go with "B" because his whole aim in life is to see how many girls he can make, and not to go with "C" because he's a beer drunk and a dangerous driver. This bossy brother of mine has a knock for everybody. If I listen to him I will be an old maid.

Please tell me what to say when he tries to manage my life, which is like all the time. — Opelousas, La. Dear Op: Say, "Thank you."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I couldn't believe my eyes when I read the letter from "Dis- gusted Daughter" who said she had just returned from another rotten dinner at her mother's house. She described the apartment as "filthy" and

Sunfolk Singers Will Appear in Concert at First English Church

The Sunfolk Singers of Con- cordia College, Moorhead, Minn., will be singing con- temporary folk hymns at 7 p.m. Monday at First English Lu- theran Church.

A free-will offering will be received for sponsoring their summer tour.

I wish they'd think about it and not blandly ask when they "should" start the pill.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been taking a fresh lemon squeezed in a glass of water every day. Is this amount harmful? Some people say so, although I feel fine. — Mrs. B.E.

No. It's been tried in various ways but not successfully.

High Court Upholds Tax Levying Right Of Vocational Districts

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The state supreme court Wednesday unanimously upheld the con- stitutionality of the Wisconsin area vocational school system and the power of appointed area boards to levy taxes.

The decision broke a bonding logjam in new vocational school projects in Wisconsin.

It came in an appeal by the village of West Milwaukee and the city of St. Francis. Both objected to their inclusion in the Milwaukee Technical College District.

Justice Horace Wilkie dis- missed a contention in the ap- peal that taxing power belongs exclusively to the legislature. Various sewerage commis- sion cases already have settled the legal argument that an ad- ministrative body can levy di- rect taxes, he said.

Ruling that "there is little substance" to any of the con- stitutional challenges of the ap- peal, Wilkie said the "real ob- jection" of the appellants is to a legislative policy determina- tion to set up the area voca- tional system in its present form.

"The wisdom of such a deter- mination is a matter of legisla- tive choice, it is not for this court to decide," he added.

County Park, Swimming Lake Opens for Business July 3

BY BILL HURRLE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Some last administrative licks were given Thursday by the Winnebago County park committee to Community Park. It will be opened July 3, according to present plans.

The committee set prices for swimming in the lake pool, decided on signs, smoothed staffing problems and began to formulate rules of behavior for the park and swimming area. The latter will be incorporated into an ordinance.

Season passes for families will be $15. for adults $6 and for seven to 13-year olds $3. Daily general admission will be 50 cents for those over 13-year old and 25 cents for those under 13. Hours were tentatively set at 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The ticket prices are in line with other swimming pools and lakes in the area. The committee expects $19,000 of revenue from ticket sales.

The park is not yet finished. Two more phases of development remain. Phase II will add athletic facilities — tennis courts, a soccer field, a baseball diamond and two shelters. It will be done in three years.

Phase III will take about five more years and will add wildlife trails, bicycle paths and scouting facilities.

In 1969, capital expenditures were $179,200. Last year, $198,400 went into it and $135,000 is budgeted for this year to create the 252-acre park.

The money has purchased roads, parking lots, sewer and water service three small lakes, a bath house, picnic tables, grills, trees, fences, bushes, many acres of seeded grass, lights and toilets.

Fifty per cent of the money is noncounty.

Developing Community Park was given the highest priority in 1969 by the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission when it presented the county's outdoor recreation plan. The strongest reason is that "The polluted condition of Lake Winnebago precludes its full season usage for swimming."

It also will take pressure off Oshkosh's 204 acres of parks and satisfy that urban area's needs for picnic places, hiking and nature trails until about 1975. However, even with Community Park operating, the county's park system is woefully inadequate, according to

Consumer Address Protection

NEENAH — Mrs. Camille Haney, consumer affairs coordinator for the State Department of Justice, will speak to Twin City businessmen on consumer protection at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Community Room of the First National Bank of Neenah.

More than 175 invitations have gone out from the retail-service council of the Chamber of Commerce for the program.

Mrs. Haney, who joined the staff of the consumer protection division last October, is in charge of departmental administration, complaint processing and public information activities.

Chamber officials have urged business operators, especially those in the repair, appliances, automotive or service businesses, to attend the session.

20-Day Jail Term In License Offense

NEENAH — David Wright, 26, 312 Monroe St., was sentenced to 20 days in the Winnebago County jail after pleading guilty to driving after revocation of his license.

He appeared before Judge James V. Sitter this week and pleaded guilty to nonregistration and having false evidence on the registration. He was allowed Huber privileges.

Department of Natural Resources standards.

The county has 296 acres of parks. In 1969, that fulfilled 17 per cent of the acres required for the county's population. The standard asks for 90 acres for each 1,000 people. Now, about 1,800 acres are needed, and if population projections hold true and no parks are added, the deficit will be 1,875 acres by 1980 and 2,235 acres by 1990.

The present acres of park adequately will serve 19,700 of the county's 130,000 residents. The 111,300 people without developed open space locally have to travel elsewhere to get it.

The parks also are not near population centers. Northeastern figures that 80 per cent of the county is inadequately served by the present system. Over 200 more camping sites are needed right now, 150 more picnic tables could be used, two more golf courses, eight miles of hiking trails and two miles of nature walk areas could be acquired today.

The only recreation categories the county has a surplus of are connected with water — 77,326 extra acres for boating, 78,532 extra acres for fishing and 88,679 extra acres for water skiing. The problem is the condition of that water.

The park committee has no working plan for long-range capital accumulation and land acquisition. In the long-range planning report which lists capital items each committee sees as a future need, the Park Committee's projects "may include parks near Winchester Hill, Eureka and the Waukau Creek area."

The committee has purchased a park on Waukau Creek. It is a 50-acre park filled with wild flowers and flowering shrubs. Much development would ruin the ecology of the area and plans are to leave it a relatively undeveloped nature study area.

Under state law, counties have authority to levy taxes of 0.4 mill for park purposes. Winnebago County has not done so.

Menasha Bartenders Face License Renewal Deadline

MENASHA — The police department warns bartenders they have until noon Thursday to apply for 1971-72 bartender's licenses if they want to get them by the required July 1 deadline.

The department is setting the June 10 deadline so it can do the required paper work before the common council meets on June 15, the last chance it will have to approve the new licenses before the old ones expire on June 30.

Bartenders can apply later, but they will be without a license to work between July 1 and 6.

About 100 applications have come into the department, but officials say there are over 100 still outstanding.

If a person can't get to the department between 7:30 a.m.

and 3:30 p.m. during the week, he can call the department and make special arrangements to come in and fill out the application.

Appalachia Unit Assailed

Commission Fails In Road Program, U.S. Auditors Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal auditors claim a costly effort to create arteries for speeding economic lifeblood to Appalachia is resulting in vast fragmentation because of weak regional management.

The Appalachian Regional Commission "adopted a passive role in the administration of the highway program and was concerned primarily with approving the actions taken by the states," charges the General Accounting Office in a report to Congress.

Scattered Sections
"As a result, those sections of the highway system that have been approved for construction within the currently authorized federal funds will be scattered throughout the participating states and some sections do not significantly increase accessibility to and through the region," the GAO adds. The report states flatly that the 13-state commission "did not establish construction priorities directed toward achieving the greatest contributions toward the program goal—improving accessibility to, through and within the region—at the earliest practicable time, nor did it determine whether the priorities established by the states were directed toward that end."

'More Reliable'
Current calculations put the cost of the system at about $3.85 billion—an increase of $2.65 billion over the original Commission estimate. GAO said, with the present figure compiled "in a more reliable manner than was the initial one."

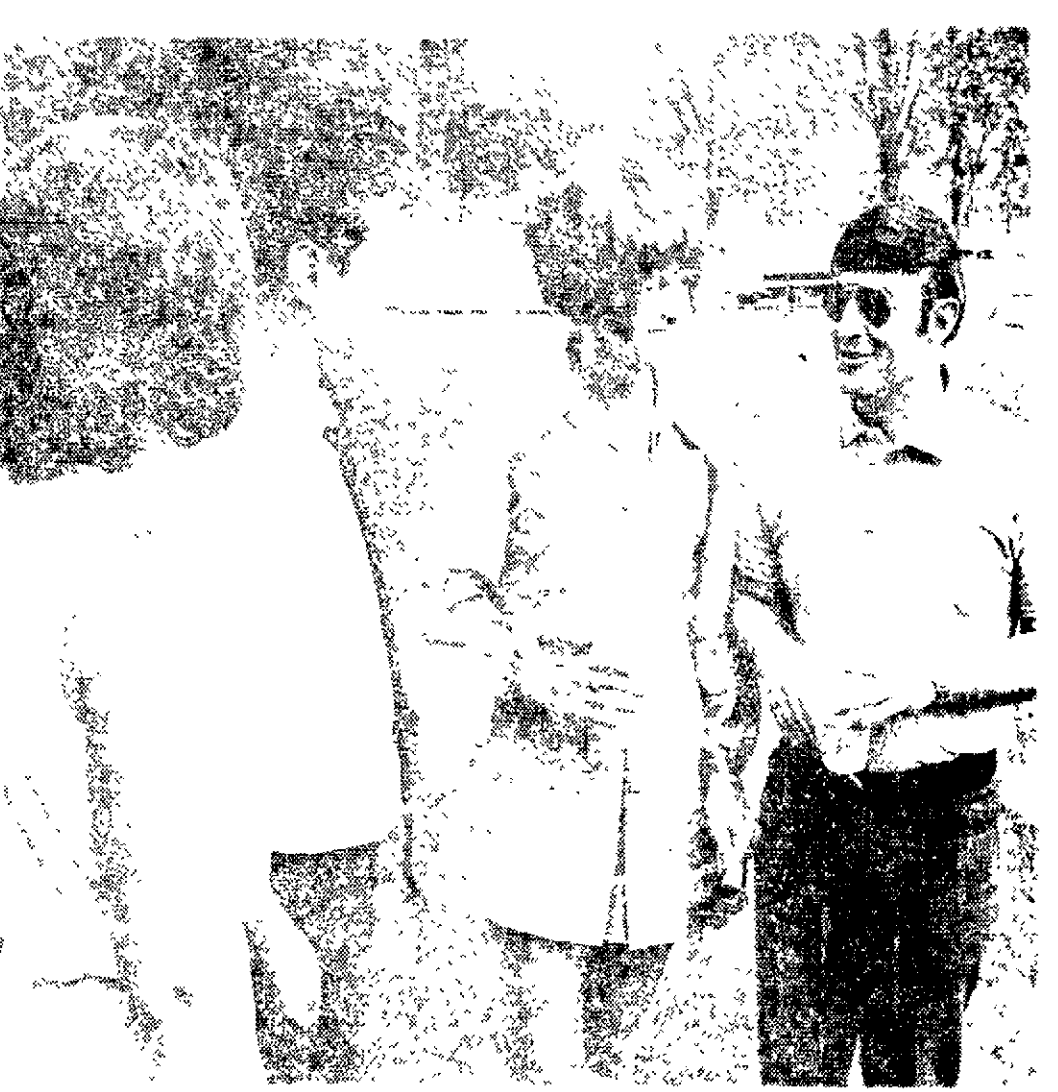

The auditors urged the commission to set priorities for building based on the potential for improving region-wide accessibility and use the rest of the federal funds in the program, about $423 million, on the basis of those priorities.

Congress is considering a $925-million authorization as the federal share in completing the system spanning nearly 3,000 miles along 21 corridors.

Eyed as Soccer Field City Retains Cedar Quarry Control

NEENAH — The Cedar Street park would be appropriate and the maintenance responsibility will be assumed by the Street and Sanitation Department.

William Miller, park and recreation superintendent, said he has no specific plans for the 700-by-300-foot parcel and sell lots, but the called for turning it into a soccer field to support a single-family home.

For the past several years, developers at the time said the area has been maintained only way it would pay to build by Miller's crews, but according would be to construct apartment houses, so the cost of sinking the health and welfare committee-plings could be justified.

Soccer Field
In a letter to park and recreation chairman Douglas Haufe, Troyer said "I do feel that the assumption of jurisdiction of the Cedar Street quarry area before a specific plan for its use is detailed and included in the city's long-range park plan."

Season Swimming Passes Go on Sale Monday in Menasha

MENASHA — Season passes will go on sale at the Menasha pool at 9 a.m. Monday.

Recreation Director Robert Vaneyhoven announced children's passes ($12 and under) are $3, students' ($13-18) $5 and adults (over 18) $6 and family (regardless of the number in the family) $15.

Daily admissions include children 25 cents; students, 30 cents; and adults, 60 cents.

Late learn-to-swim registrations for city residents will be taken from 9 a.m. until noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Monday. Non-residents will sign up next Saturday.

Trail Bike Riders Also Need Licenses

MENASHA — The police department is reminding parents that drivers of powered minibikes and trail bikes must be 16 years old, in possession of a license to operate it and wearing a protective helmet.

Some youngsters have been seen driving the vehicles recently, and police officials believe it may be a case of parents not being aware of the city ordinance.

Juveniles caught illegally driving such vehicles would be referred to juvenile court and probably not be allowed to get their driver's license when they turn 16.

Woehler's Plans Go to Board

The first three administrative, next year proposals from Outagamie County Executive Alvin E. Chute. Kimberly, Combined Woehler will go to the county board Tuesday night and little opposition is expected to them.

The proposals include Woehler's request to have administrative reviews conducted of all county departments and to have two special study committees named into the needs of the mentally retarded and county institutions.

Planning Issue

A four-page agenda will greet supervisors who are holding their second consecutive monthly meeting at night. Despite the long list of resolutions and communications, most of the items are routine and not expected to take much time.

Supervisors are expected to touch on the regional planning issue but the recent pronouncements of a possible merger between Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) has taken much of the edge off potential debate.

A verbal report is expected to be filed by the policy and finance committee on its actions on a Chamber of Commerce proposal to have all members withdraw from both agencies and to create a new agency. The committee voted to take no action one way or the other.

At the same time, letters have been filed from six communities, all members of COG, asking that they be excluded from the county assessment for membership in Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

The communities are Little Chute, Kimberly, Combined Locks, Kaukauna, and the towns of Buchanan and Vanden Broek.

Stay in Northeastern
The City of New London and seven other individuals and organizations also have filed letters asking that the county stay in Northeastern.

The judiciary and enforcement committee's proposal to create a two-attorney panel to handle all indigent defense cases also is expected to be revived in view of the state attorney panel to handle all indigent defense cases also is expected to be revived in view of the state attorney general's favorable opinion on the plan. The issue was referred back to committee last month to get the opinion.

Action also is expected on the Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12's (VTE-12) request for first refusal options on two county-owned parcels of land near the new Fox Valley Technical Institute (FVTI) site. The options have been recommended by the public property and parks committee.

Kaukauna Issue
Control of Business Building Suggested

KAUKAUNA — The planning commission voted Thursday evening to recommend to the legislative committee of the council adoption of an ordinance which would give the council control over construction of service stations or drive-in type businesses in the city. Action was taken after the council received numerous complaints recently about a gasoline station being built at Wisconsin Avenue and Lawe Street. In addition to petitions signed by adults and students, many aldermen and Mayor Gilbert Anderson received calls opposing location of a station at that corner.

Since zoning and building regulations were met, the city had no alternative but to issue the permit, but new legislation is expected to give the city more control over such building. The commission adopted a resolution accepting a 701 master comprehensive plan for the city as prepared by the Fox Valley Council of Governments and voted to recommend to the council adoption of a new subdivision ordinance prepared by the same agency.

Members voted to recommend to the council reclassification of zoning for approximately 17 lots in the Ravinia Courts plat, some to be designated Class A and some Class B residential. This is a new plat and no building has been undertaken to date; so the commission felt rezoning should be made early. This would permit persons buying lots to know the type of zoning regulations in their neighborhood.

Members briefly discussed location of mobile homes within the city, but then agreed to devote a future meeting to such a proposal when a more complete study would be undertaken.

Church Addition Permit Issued

KAUKAUNA — A permit to construct an addition and remodel Immanuel United Church of Christ, 220 W. Sixth St., was issued to William Tiede and Sons, Appleton, general contractor, by Harold Loeser, building inspector.

Cost of the work, not including plumbing, heating or electrical work, was estimated at $140,000. The addition will include remodeling work in fellowship hall and classrooms within the church. The addition will be of masonry construction.

Youth Charged On Counts of Theft, Burglary

Charges of theft, burglary and operating an automobile without the owner's consent were lodged Friday against John Moe Jr., 17, 2506 S. Jefferson St.

The youth, who had been waived from the Juvenile Court and appeared with an attorney, waived a preliminary hearing. Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued the case to Wednesday afternoon.

Appleton detectives charge that Moe took an auto from Budget Rent-A-Car, 324 W. Wisconsin Ave., May 21, without permission of the manager. On May 13, they charge, Moe stole a stereo tape recorder and two tapes from the auto of David Deltgen, 607 S. Lee St., while the car was parked in the lot of Appleton High School-East.

The burglary count results from a May 26 break-in at the Quaker Dairy Store, 2000 S. Oneida St., where $46 in cash and change was taken after entry was forced.

Schaefer authorized the boy to post $150 and sign for the balance of a $1,500 bond with his father.

Fox Pollution Compared To Worst in Lake Erie

Even Snails and Leeches Are Going, Panel Is Told

Biologists compared the Fox Valley waters to the worst part of the nationally known polluted Lake Erie Friday afternoon as the Assembly Natural Resources Committee concluded its one day of testimony.

The committee, in Appleton to hear about charges that conflicts of interest have slowed antipollution fights along the Lower Fox River and its environs, hear the comparisons along with a bundle of statistics about the dying life-supporting ability of area waters.

Committee members also were told the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission couldn't get the expanded plant ready by the State Department of Natural Resources December, 1972, deadline. The commission's plant will be forced to continue dumping many tons of raw sewage into the Fox until a large plant is built, they were told.

Industry Spokesmen

The only two industrial representatives to appear were from Combined Paper Mills, Inc., Combined Locks plant, and Consolidated Papers, Inc., Wisconsin Rapids firm with an Appleton plant. Both defended their efforts in abatement but the Consolidated spokesman said his firm doesn't know yet how it technically can meet new DNR orders in the Appleton plant.

A total of 22 persons spoke throughout the day. Some repeated earlier charges of industrial conflicts of interest hampering abatement efforts and many lamented the pathetic condition of the Fox and the other area surface waters.

The committee was slated to take an airplane tour this morning over northeastern Wisconsin and a bus trip to specific spots after that. The hearing goal was to determine if legislation is needed.

Dr. Richard Howmiller, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, explained recent tests he took of the Green Bay and said the organisms most tolerant of an oxygen deficiency are dying out. He called the Fox mouth "practically a biological desert" and said it was as bad as the worst part of Lake Erie.

Even the snails, leeches and fingernail clams are disappearing, he warned, noting an industry-influenced survey in 1956 had deceived the people into thinking the bay was improving.

Compared to Erie
Dr. William Sloey, Oshkosh State University biologist, listed a number of pollution levels and characteristics in Lake Winnebago and Big Lake Butte Des Morts which compare with — or are worse than — those in Western Lake Erie. Some conditions in Butte Des Morts are five times as bad as Erie, he said.

He said the Winnebago pool was very touchy in re-oxygenizing, Mittness, D-Janesville, was particularly interested in that problem because of his familiarity pushing the water and sunlight hitting it, it doesn't rejuvenate, with it.

He called for a management team to watch the area's surface water quality "every minute" of every day.

Gilbert Krueger, Neenah-Menasha commission president, and Ronald St. Laurent, commission manager-engineer, explained the problems caused by the inadequately-built sewage abatement expenditures have treatment plant of a few years totaled $23 million compared ago Committee chairman Lewis with a total plant cost of under $8 million. He noted his firm would try to comply with DNR orders.

Reinhold Vogt, Combined Paper mill manager, said that DNR orders would hurt industry in competition with other states' resolved by federal establishment of standards. He said his firm would comply.

Several others spoke in the afternoon, including a Girl Scout official Appleton East High student, a housewife, a representative of the Izaak Walton League and an Appleton engineering firm representative.

In a late morning presentation, Lawrence Michaels, of the Fox Valley Council of Governments, outlined projects being effected to help the Fox and projects under consideration to solve service problems on a regional basis. He noted the recent proposal for a river authority, a management program for which funding might be sought.

No Blackout

Mediator Joins Contract Talks

Negotiators for the 1,200 striking Fox Valley carpenters and the Fox River Valley Contractors Association will hold their initial meeting with a federal mediator Monday afternoon, it was learned today.

Negotiating teams also will hold their own preliminary meeting at 10 a.m. Monday at a location yet to be determined, according to Alfred Ganther Jr., Oshkosh, chairman of the negotiations committee of the contractors group.

Ganther refuted a claim published this morning in a Milwaukee newspaper that carpenter union leaders and Fox Valley contractors had agreed to a complete news blackout on further negotiations until either a new contract is accepted or a full strike is called. A similar statement was aired by some radio stations.

No Blackout
According to Ganther, the striking carpenters union asked for agreement on a news blackout, but the contractors would not accept the proposal. The spokesman for the carpenters' union was not available for comment on the blackout report this morning.

Ganther also explained that negotiations to date have not resulted in the degree of progress that has been reported. He said "a little of the contract language has been straightened out." Some earlier reports had stated that the contractors and the carpenters had agreed to most of the terminology in a new contract proposal, but have not discussed economics.

Settle Language
The two sides had agreed to first settle the mechanics of contract language, Ganther explained. Carpenters and painters struck after their contracts expired June 1. Contracts for three other construction trades groups, bricklayers, laborers and Teamsters, expired the same day, but they have not struck. Negotiations with these groups are continuing.

Officials of the two striking unions have said there would be no picketing unless they find carpenters and painters' work is being done by others.

many at the inquest, and that of several other witnesses, indicated that Pirner was speeding prior to the moment when his car struck Mrs. Kennedy on College Avenue, just west of Appleton Street.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer Friday authorized Pirner to post 10 per cent of $1,000 bond, and sign for the balance.

Thomas A. Pirner, 18, 1820 N. Union St., whose automobile struck and killed Mrs. Marilyn Kennedy, 46, 123½ W. College Ave., early May 9 downtown, will be arraigned June 22 on a charge of homicide by the negligent use of a motor vehicle.

Pirner was formally charged after the count was recommended after a coroner's inquest May 21. Pirner's testimony will be subjects for perhaps eight study groups.

Carley said he is determined that the work of the task force will not be shelved as other commission reports have been. He has arranged to work with a number of legislators, in addition to the six senators and representatives on the commission, to assure continued awareness of the group's progress.

A preliminary report is expected to be published by October of health centers, were ranked according to importance. The major problems identified by consistently high priority ratings will be subjects for perhaps eight study groups.

Problems Ranked
The problems, ranging from the obvious — high costs and shortage of professionals, to the obscure — the restrictions of state law and inadequate hours of health centers, were ranked according to importance. The major problems identified by consistently high priority ratings will be subjects for perhaps eight study groups.

Carley called the project "one of the most momentous adventures in state government in a long time." He said the breadth of the responsibility of the group to design vast changes in health care is greater than that being undertaken at the direction of 15 other governors, the president, and the Congress. He said the scope of the task already has attracted some positive interest from foundations that may support the work financially.

Faise Fire Alarm Calls Traced to Boy

A fire department tape recorder was instrumental in tracing two false alarm calls this week to an 11-year-old Appleton boy.

He admitted to detectives Friday afternoon that he made the first call at 12:40 p.m. Wednesday and the second at 12:45 p.m. Friday. Authorities said he falsely reported house fires both times. Fire fighters went to 801 W. Frances Street the first time and 831 W. Frances Street the second time.

The boy lives on W. Frances Street but made the calls from the home of a 10-year-old friend who is a neighbor. All emergency calls that come into the fire department are recorded. Occupants of one of the homes to which the fire department was summoned recognized the voice on the recording.

The matter was referred to the police department's juvenile aid bureau for further action.

Woman Fined $108 For Ignoring Signal In Car-Train Crash

NEENAH — Rosemary Schuller, 20, 320 Bond St., was fined $108.50 after pleading guilty to disregarding a railroad signal.

She appeared before Winnebago County Judge James V. Sitter this week to answer the charges filed after she struck a train at the Soo Line tracks and Winnebago Avenue. She was injured in the mishap.

Institute Awards Its 300th Ph.D

The 300th doctoral degree from The Institute of Paper Chemistry will be awarded during commencement activities June 12.

The first doctoral degree was awarded in 1933 and, by virtue of his alphabetical placement, went to Harold W. Blakowsky, who recently retired as president of Stora Kopparberg Corp.

By the same alphabetical happenstance, Philip F. Brown will receive the 300th doctoral degree.

In all, six Ph.D. degrees and eleven M.S. degrees will be awarded from the Institute this year. One Wisconsin resident, David Dumbleton of Waukesha, is among the doctoral graduates. Another, Dennis J. Czappo of Nekosia, is among the M.S. graduates.

Presentation of three of the Ph.D. degrees will be ceremonial only. Actual awarding of the degrees was completed last January. These were those of William A. Kinder, Jr., John T. McCloskey, and Joseph T. Webb.

Fulfillment of requirements for the Ph.D. degree at the Institute hinges primarily on completion of research for the doctoral thesis and a successful defense of the thesis before a committee of the faculty. Completion of the research does not necessarily coincide with the end of a school year.

The doctoral graduates' hometowns and academic backgrounds are:

James S. Albrecht, Naperville, Ill., A.B., Grinnell College; Philip F. Brown, Gray, Maine, B.S., University of Maine; Dumbleton, B.A., Northwestern University, B.S., University of Wisconsin; William A. Kinder, Jr., Ferndale, Wash., B.A., Western Washington State College; John T. McCloskey, Kent, Wash., B.S., Seattle University; Joseph T. Webb, Rocky Mount, N.C., B.S., North Carolina State University.

Each graduate holds the M.S. degree from The Institute of Paper Chemistry.

M.S. Recipients
One student from Wisconsin and four students from foreign countries will be among those receiving the M.S. degree.

The recipients are William M. Baird, Decatur, Ill., B.A., Lawrence University; Nurhan A. Becidyan, Istanbul, Turkey, B.S., Robert College; George R. Brown, Savannah, Ga., B.S., North Carolina State University; Czappo, B.S., Western Michigan University; John A. Fleck, McHenry, Ill., B.S., Ripon College; Larry L. Graham, Mercer Island, Wash., B.S., Northwestern University and M.S., University of Toledo; Say Kyoung Ow, Seoul, Korea, B.S., Seoul National University; Walter H. Persinger, Jr., Eden, N.Y., B.S., Purdue University; Bipin Sharma, Kashmir, India, B.S., Banaras Hindu University; Gary M. Watson, Bellingham, Wash., B.A., Western Washington State College; and William Rivas, Pereira, Risalda, Colombia, B.S., University of Antioquia.

The degrees of Brown and Rivas will be awarded in absentia. Both completed requirements for the M.S. degree earlier in the year and have accepted employment. Brown is in Georgia and Rivas is in South America.

Total number of degrees now awarded by the Institute since it first opened doors academically in 1930 stands at 301 Ph.D. degrees and 436 M.S. degrees.

Social functions associated with graduation weekend will include a reception by the academic administration for degree recipients and their guests. The reception will be held in the Lou Calder Student Center from 2 to 4 p.m.

Solutions Sought to State Problems

Health Task Force Begins Its Work

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — A 50-member task force Friday embarked on a year and one half project to identify and propose solutions to Wisconsin's health care problems.

Gov. Patrick Lucey, who named the members of the group that is headed by David A. Carley of Madison, told the task force he expects it can develop "the model health plan for the nation."

He called on the members to reform the health system in the state so that every citizen has an equal right to adequate care. Unlike other short-term task force assignments Lucey has made, the health planning and policy group was called together only after about three months of preparation and the assembling of the skeleton of a full-time staff to serve the group. The project will be funded by $99,000 in state funds released by the Board on Government Operations last week and Carley predicted, some private foundation funds. A federally funded staff from the Department of Health and Social Services has been assigned for the project.

Forecasts Vast Changes
Carley called the project "one of the most momentous adventures in state government in a long time." He said the breadth of the responsibility of the group to design vast changes in health care is greater than that being undertaken at the direction of 15 other governors, the president, and the Congress. He said the scope of the task already has attracted some positive interest from foundations that may support the work financially.

The long-time Democratic party activist told the group made up primarily of persons involved in some way in health care that health is a political but not partisan issue. He predicted that the work of the task force would be closely scrutinized on completion for the report's impact of special interests among the members.

Conflict of Interest
Carley called on the members to make public their personal biases, possible conflicts of interests in business and personal association to preserve the integrity of the work.

Carley recently was named to fill a vacancy on the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents, and his ownership of student apartments on the UW-Green Bay campus has been cited as a possible conflict of interest. But, Carley told the group, for health task force, personal ideologies and philosophies could constitute more serious conflicts of interest.

He cited his own interest in mental retardation, the fact that he has a retarded daughter, and his business involvement in building hospitals and university medical centers as the types of special interests to be identified as bearing on the work of the task force.

The group, with the assistance of several management specialists from the University of Wisconsin, began its work immediately Friday. Dividing into work groups, the members identified several hundred "barriers" to the provision of adequate health care to all citizens of Wisconsin.

The problems, ranging from the obvious — high costs and shortage of professionals, to the obscure — the restrictions of state law and inadequate hours of health centers, were ranked according to importance. The major problems identified by consistently high priority ratings will be subjects for perhaps eight study groups.

Carley said he is determined that the work of the task force will not be shelved as other commission reports have been. He has arranged to work with a number of legislators, in addition to the six senators and representatives on the commission, to assure continued awareness of the group's progress.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I'm just dying to tell someone about my newly decorated bathroom, and you are such a good listener!

Heloise
You see, my bathroom is done in black and white and finding just the right curtain for my bathroom window was no easy task.

I tried several different ideas and just wasn't pleased. Finally I hit upon the idea of using ball fringe. Hou heard right — and after I explain you'll see I haven't really flipped.

I used the very large black ball fringe and a regular cafe curtain rod with the brass pinch clips.

Just cut fringe the desired length needed for the window and hang each length with one of those little pinch clips.

This really gave the room a light airy look but still I just wasn't completely satisfied. It needed something more. So, I frosted my window and you should see it now. It's simply spectacular!

Thanks for listening! Anything is more fun when shared!

Gabby

Anytime, doll! And if you come up with another brain child like that, promise me you'll get it in the very next mail out I'll be waiting.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My father had a good idea on how to roast wieners over an open fire.

He took a broken TV antenna and used that.

It folds up easily for storage and is just perfect when we go camping.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise:

In one of your recent columns it was stated that "life is a matter of choices but that we have to be willing to live with them after we make 'em!"

Well, my husband and I made a choice last summer and have never regretted it. You see, we discovered a painting we both liked so very much but the price was beyond our budget.

But we made the choice. We decided to let the painting represent all the presents we would give each other during the next two years. Now, when we have a birthday or wedding anniversary we stand in front of our picture and exchange best wishes for many more.

Not once have we regretted our choice!

Gaylord and Phyllis

Dear Heloise:

I've found in storing important papers, receipts, etc., that if I fold them so that the writing is to the outside it makes it much easier for me to find the particular paper I want.

I don't have to open up each one separately but can readily tell at a glance whether it is the one I'm looking for.

Lillian Drohm

Dear Heloise:

Don't worry any more about buying or making appliance covers because I have the perfect solution.

Just use those new plastic trash bags. Do you know that they come in all sizes? You are sure to find the right size for any appliance and besides that they come in white, green and beige — and that should go with almost any decor.

Judy

Dear Heloise:

I have a very dear friend who is bedridden and even with an air mattress and gentle care, still is very uncomfortable at times.

I made her pillows of all sizes and shapes to use wherever she needed them for more comfort.

I made two small rolls for under her knees, two triangle ones for under her arms, a rectangular one for under her back and two small round ones for under her heels.

I covered these pillows with terrycloth but later found out that covering them with soft flannel was better.

These can be dumped into the washing machine and are so easy to keep clean.

Heart of the Valley C of C To Start Drive

Group's Goal Is to Double Present Membership

KAUKAUNA — Workers conducting a Heart of the Valley Chamber of Commerce membership drive will open the campaign with a 7:30 a.m. breakfast June 11 at the Moasis Restaurant, Little Chute.

An all-out drive is planned, with the Chamber officers hoping to double present membership and to offer membership to all businesses and industries in the Combined Locks, Kaukauna, Little Chute, Kimberly and surrounding areas.

"No concentrated membership drive has been held for several years," said President Joseph Steger, "and with the new Heart of the Valley concept, we feel this drive will acquaint our present members and the neighboring communities with the advantages of Chamber membership."

Large Area Served

"The area to be served by the Heart of the Valley Chamber has a population of about 30,000 and a state equalized value of approximately one-fourth of a billion dollars. We should be able to exert increasing amounts of political pressure, especially on county and regional issues," said Steger.

"Another important thrust will be in the area of industrial development," continued the president. "We will have a single committee which will work closely with political leaders on each of the communities represented. Our concern will be to attract industry to this area of the county since it will benefit all the communities, no matter where the plant is located. This area of work requires substantial funds as well as manpower which should now be more readily available to us."

"While we are interested in attracting new business to the area, we also want to concentrate our efforts on promoting the expansion of our present business and industry. There may be many things we can do for them, but, due to lack of resources, these have not been investigated."

Need More Help

"If our drive is successful, we will be able to develop a budget of over $10,000. This should permit us to increase our staff and provide increased services to members. We intend to improve our public relations activities and educational and informational communications to the business community. There are so many important developments taking place each day that we need more help in keeping up-to-date," concluded Steger.

Contacts are being made to recruit workers for the membership campaign. Interested businessmen from throughout the area desiring to volunteer services may call the Chamber office by June 11. Businessmen do not have to have Chamber membership to assist in the campaign.
